

MILLER ADVISORS

MILLER ADVISORY

Personal financial services as individual as you are

FIRST QUARTER | 2019

FINANCIAL UPDATE

Here are selected rate of return numbers for the last two years and year to date as of 12/31/2018*

	2016 Return	2017 Return	2018 Return
Dow Jones Industrials	+16.50%	+28.11%	-3.48%
S&P 500 Index	+11.96%	+21.83%	-4.38%
NASDAQ Composite	+8.87%	+29.64%	-2.84%
MSCI World (ex. U.S.) in U.S. dollars	+2.75%	+24.21%	-14.09%
Russell 2000	+21.31%	+14.65%	-11.01%
Russell 1000 Value Index	+17.34%	+13.66%	-8.27%
Russell 1000 Growth Index	+7.08%	+30.21%	-1.51%
Russell 3000 TR USD	+12.74%	+21.13%	-5.24%

Major Bond Indexes

	2016 Return	2017 Return	2018 Return
Barcap Intermediate Treasury	+1.06%	+1.14%	+0.01%
Barcap Aggregate	+2.65%	+3.54%	+1.41%

Mutual Funds (Morningstar Categories)

	2016 Return	2017 Return	2018 Return
Large-Cap Growth	+1.79%	+31.15%	+2.94%
Large-Cap Value	+18.91%	+15.09%	-5.90%
Small-Cap Growth	+9.61%	+23.77%	-5.67%
Small-Cap Value	+27.96%	+8.40%	-16.61%

(Source: Morningstar) *Inclusion of these indexes is for illustrative purposes only. Keep in mind that individuals cannot invest directly in any index, and index performance does not include transaction costs or other fees, which will affect actual investment performance. Individual investor's results may vary. Past performance does not guarantee future results.

10 YEARS LATER

Learning from the Worst Market Downturn in Generations Can Help Chart a Better Path

History teaches lessons, but we only gain insights after we've worked to understand what really happened. Ten years ago, the economy was in the middle of the worst recession since the Great Depression, and equity markets were in freefall. The international banking crisis and the bankruptcy of Lehman Brothers were part of a stock market crash that would continue for several more months. "The financial crisis offered people the opportunity to learn valuable lessons about the fundamentals of investing," says Stuart Ritter, CFP®, a senior financial planner with T. Rowe Price.

Life is like riding a bicycle—in order to keep your balance, you must keep moving."

- ALBERT EINSTEIN

MILLER ADVISORS

MILLER ADVISORY

Personal financial services as individual as you are

FIRST QUARTER | 2019

“Unfortunately, some reached the wrong conclusions—which still could be holding them back from reaching their future goals.”

Looking Back

Investors experienced a financial one-two punch in the form of falling home prices and declining portfolio values. For some, financial lives were turned upside down, with seemingly no relief in sight. With the benefit of hindsight, we know the market hit bottom on March 9, 2009, but in late 2008, there was little to be confident about.

The S&P 500 Index recouped losses by November 23, 2012, roughly three and a half years after the market bottom. Unfortunately, not every investor chose to ride out the downturn. In addition to locking in their losses, those who acted on their emotions still may be holding on to fear-based investment mind-sets.

4 Post-Financial Crisis Mind-Sets

All investors feel emotions, but some let those emotions influence their actions, leading them to draw the wrong conclusions from the 2008 downturn:

- Too Cautious
Those who exited the markets in 2008 and are still too fearful to get back in.
- Market Watching
Those who focus on what the markets are doing in the short term (and not the long-term performance of their own portfolios) and react to headlines by constantly adjusting their investments.
- Enticed and Chasing
Those who think they know better now yet still keep chasing the next big thing, whether it be tech stocks, real estate, gold, or cryptocurrencies.
- Complacent
Those who assume stocks are supposed to keep rising steadily and have allowed themselves to remain too heavily exposed to stocks despite a shorter time horizon and the risks of short-term volatility.

Many investors experience these mind-sets from time to time. What sets some apart is that they also know how to stick to their plan despite these emotions.

Embracing the Lessons

Consider the following reactions some investors may have had during the 2008 financial crisis and valuable investing lessons that have held true in the decade since the downturn:

2008 Reaction: Stocks are too risky.

Investing Lesson: Short-term volatility doesn't negate the long-term growth potential of stocks.

Staggering declines in the S&P 500 Index shocked inexperienced and seasoned investors alike.

MILLER ADVISORS

MILLER ADVISORY

Personal financial services as individual as you are

FIRST QUARTER | 2019

Individuals faced a difficult choice to either remain invested without knowing when the markets would go back up or to get out in an attempt to avoid further losses, but with the consequence of missing out on subsequent gains.

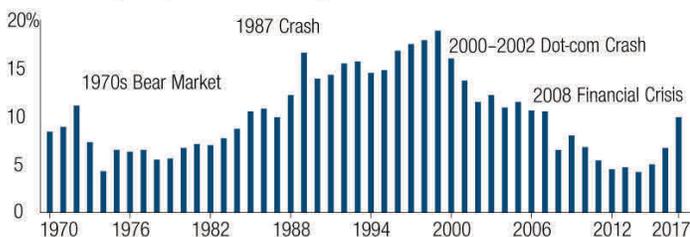

Investors who exited the market during the downturn still may not have recouped their losses despite record market highs 10 years later. Meanwhile, the S&P 500 has earned an average annual return of 7.6% since the market peak before the downturn.¹

It's important to remember that the markets have recovered from every downturn. In fact, stocks have produced positive returns in every rolling 15 calendar year period since 1926.

Steady Gains Over Time

The S&P 500 Index has never lost ground during any rolling 15-year period starting back in 1926 — and, as shown in the chart, the many recent financial crises haven't changed this fact.

Annualized returns over 15-year periods ending between December 31, 1970, and December 31, 2017

2008 Reaction: Saving in stocks for retirement isn't worth it if the market will just crash again.

Investing Lesson: By steering clear of the stock market, people potentially miss more in gains than they avoid in losses.

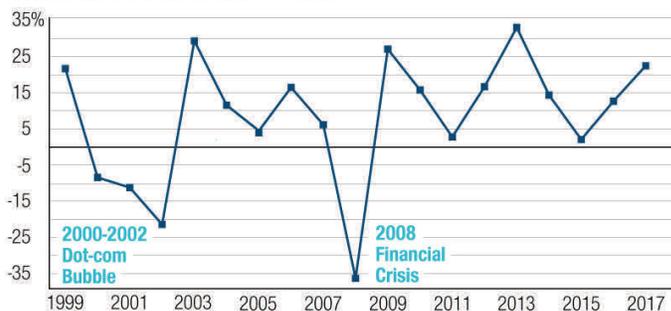

The market decline resulting from the 2008 financial crisis effectively erased a decade's worth of gains. The markets recovered, but this only benefited those who remained invested. Individuals who sold their stock holdings, despite potentially many years until retirement, locked in their losses and missed out on the subsequent gains. "The downturn decreased people's account balances; but it was the choice to sell out of stocks that made that decrease permanent and kept retirement account balances low," explains Ritter.

The fact is, despite back-to-back crises in 2001 and 2008, the stock markets have recovered to record highs. (See "A Decade Found.") Since just before the 2008 crisis, the inflation rate has averaged 1.8% per year, which means that stocks have delivered the annual growth necessary to keep retirement assets growing more than inflation.²

A Decade Found

The media touted the Lost Decade in the wake of back-to-back market downturns in the early and late 2000s, but few have bothered to note that in the 10 years since the 2008 financial crisis, markets have rebounded strongly.

Annual total return for the S&P 500 Index

MILLER ADVISORS

MILLER ADVISORY

Personal financial services as individual as you are

FIRST QUARTER | 2019

2008 Reaction: Day-to-day volatility matters.

Investing Lesson: Long-term results from a well-diversified and properly allocated portfolio are what really matter.

“Throughout the crisis, media headlines called out various one-day market declines as if they represented important news for all investors, as well as a trend that would continue indefinitely.” recalls Ritter. “Such was the level of alarm being raised at the time.”

The headlines stoked fear based on an assumption that individuals were invested entirely in, or had a high allocation to, U.S. equities and that the day-to-day volatility was something they should react to. What these headlines omitted, however, was that properly allocated investors with significant stock portfolios would have decades to recover from any market decline. “For many people, however, what they were reading in the headlines wasn’t what was happening in their portfolios,” says Ritter. “Investors with shorter time horizons likely had exposure to bonds and even cash to help buffer the declines they experienced in their equity portfolios.”

Markets regularly cycle through periods of less and more volatility. This pattern is why maintaining an asset allocation that is appropriate for your time horizon is so important—not to mention sticking to your plan regardless of what part of the volatility cycle you find yourself in.

The Fundamentals of Investing

There is no doubt that the 2008 financial crisis was unsettling for many individuals. At the same time, past fears should not change a sound approach to investing. As markets do what they do, the best strategy is still the one that has helped investors weather every market crisis to date: Stick to the fundamentals.

Investors who stayed focused on the principles of sound investing—namely, an appropriate asset allocation based on time horizon and risk tolerance, along with a well-diversified portfolio—have found themselves back on track with their savings despite the worst market downturn in generations. “The real lesson to take away from the 2008 financial crisis is not that the fundamentals of investing need to change,” says Ritter. “It’s that those fundamentals really do work.”

¹ S&P 500, October 9, 2007, to May 31, 2018.

² U.S. inflation, October 2007 through April 2018.

Source: T.Rowe Price | Stuart Ritter

Image: iStock

MARCEL’S MASTERMIND

*“New Year’s
Resolution #1:
Devote More
Time to Quality
Napping.”*

MILLER ADVISORS

MILLER ADVISORY

Personal financial services as individual as you are

FIRST QUARTER | 2019

MARK YOUR CALENDAR

January

- January 31—Deadline for employers to send W-2's and 1099s to individuals.

February

- February 14—Valentine's Day. Be sure to spoil your loved ones a little!
- February 15—Deadline for financial institutions to send 1099s to individuals.
- February 28—Begin mailing delayed and amended form 1099s.

March

- March 10—Daylight Savings Time begins. Don't forget to spring forward!
- March 15—Final mailing of any remaining delayed original Form 1099s.
- March 21—Kelli will be hosting a seminar on March 21 at 7pm discussing the financial implications of aging. This will be held at the Kirkland Library and open to the public.

April

- April 15—Deadline to submit individual tax returns for the year 2018. File your taxes by this date!
- April 22—Earth Day. Remember to Reduce, Reuse, and Recycle.

PLEASE JOIN US FOR A SHREDDING PARTY

Miller Advisors is hosting a shredding party on Tuesday, April 16th from 9 am to 12 pm.

Jump-start your spring cleaning by clearing out those old statements. Bring them to our office and help us fill the shredding truck! Your documents will be destroyed onsite.

Coffee, tea and breakfast pastries will be provided.

What to Keep

- Year-end statements for all accounts including Raymond James Financial Services and Mutual Funds.
- Reports for income tax reporting such as 1099s.

What to Shred

- Keep the monthly statements until you receive the corresponding year-end statement for each account. You may then shred the monthly statements.
- After you read your Buy and Sell confirmations for all accounts, you may shred those as well.

Image: Iron Mountain

MILLER ADVISORS

MILLER ADVISORY

Personal financial services as individual as you are

FIRST QUARTER | 2019

ANNUAL OFFERING OF FORM ADV—Part II

As a Registered Investment Advisor, Miller Advisors is required to offer our form ADV—Part II annually to our investment advisory clients. This document contains information about our fees and services, education and business backgrounds of the officers and investment managers, investment or brokerage affiliations, our code of ethics, and privacy policy. You will receive a copy of material changes to our ADV—Part II form by the end of April.

STAFF NEWS

Travel

Kathleen and Nicole will be attending the Women Sharing Wisdom Conference in Colorado in February. They join a select group of women advisors to discuss practice management and best practices as well as mentoring and educating other young advisors.

Education

David recently attended the CFA Seattle Forecast Dinner with Michael Lewis as the keynote speaker. Lewis is known for his books such as The Big Short, Moneyball, Flash Boys, and The Blind Side.

Congratulations

We'd like to congratulate Kelli Young on being invited to join the Raymond James Retirement Solutions Advisory Board. Raymond James is a leader in this area. Kelli looks forward to sharing her expertise with other Raymond James offices.

CONTACT INFORMATION & DISCLOSURES

We would like to remind you that in the event you are unable to speak with someone at our office, you can contact Raymond James Client Services directly for assistance with your accounts at (800) 647-7378. We would like to thank those of you who have referred your associates, clients, family members and friends to us. Your referrals are personally and professionally the most satisfying way for our practice to grow. If you have any questions or feedback regarding the newsletter, please contact the office and let us know how we can improve our communication with you.

Please contact us at (425) 822-8122 or by email. Be sure to include more than one email address to ensure a prompt response.

Kathleen Miller	k.miller@milleradvisors.com
Nicole Miller	n.miller@milleradvisors.com
Kelli Young	k.young@milleradvisors.com
David Simpson	d.simpson@milleradvisors.com
Nik Weiler	n.weiler@milleradvisors.com
Jane Castro	j.castro@milleradvisors.com

Miller Advisors, Inc. is a SEC Registered Investment Advisor. The information contained in this report does not purport to be a complete description of securities, markets, or developments referred to in this material. The information has been obtained from sources considered to be reliable, but we do not guarantee that the foregoing material is accurate or complete. Expressions of opinion are as of this date and are subject to change without notice. Past performance does not guarantee future results.